Urlicht (Primordial Light), Des Knabel Wunderhorn

Gustav Mahler
(1860-1911)

O rosebud red. Here man lies in greatest dread. Here man lies in greatest pain. In longing I'd ever in Heaven remain. Then came I upon a path so broad; sweetly a cherub came and beckoned me away. Ah, no! I would not turned aside be! From God I came and to God I'll return. For Loving God in Heaven shall give me light for seeing, shall lighten me onward to eternal, blissful being.

Text: Anonymous, translation by William Green (b. 1988)

William Green, tenor

Crucifix

Jean-Baptiste Faure
(1830-1914)

Come, ye that weep, to Him bow down who sin forgiveth. All ye that suffer, come to Him, and taste his grace. Your trembling hearts before Him place, come where He waits with smiling face! Come when the hour of death draws nigh: come where he waits with smiling face! In life's last hour on Him rely who lives forever. He ever liveth! He lives forever!

Text: Victor Hugo (1802-1885)
adapted by Theodore T. Barker (1845-1885)
